

TROOPS DISAPPOINTED.

At Countermanding Of Order to Leave the Post.

Burlington, Aug. 21.—Orders were received at Fort Ethan Allen Friday stating that any preparations which the first and second squadrons had made to go into the field would be declared off. These preparations have been a mystery the past week and no one has known what they meant. It is now said that the government was planning to secretly order these troops to Newport, R. I., there load the entire command and have them set sail under sealed orders. These orders were to be that the troops be disembarked at Portland, Me., and sent on a long practice march. The object was for the government to learn how long it would take troops to make preparations to go into the field, and to see how the sealed orders would work. The main point was to try and carry the whole project into effect without the public knowing about it, but the news leaked out. The troops are sorely disappointed in losing a trip which they contemplated with pleasure.

Public Is Aroused.

The public is aroused to a knowledge of the curative merits of that great medicinal tonic, Electric Bitters, for sick stomach, liver and kidneys. Mary H. Walters of 546 St. Clair Ave., Columbus, O., writes: "For several months I was given up to die. I had fever and ague and my nerves were wrecked. I could not sleep and my stomach was so weak from useless doctors' drugs that I could not eat. Soon after beginning to take Electric Bitters I obtained relief, and in a short time I was entirely cured." Guaranteed at the Red Cross Pharmacy and Parlor Drug Store. Price 50c.

NINE ARRESTS MADE.

Raid on Alleged Wire-Tapping Establishment in New York.

New York, Aug. 17.—Having been informed that a band of swindlers, posing as wire-tappers, had netted a large sum by the far-famed confidence method of pretending to hold back race results running to pool rooms, the police have raided a brownstone front house, handsomely furnished, in West 45th street. Nine men alleged to be members of the gang, were arrested. Eight of the prisoners already had their pictures in the rogues' gallery.

Police reserves were called out to help in the charge of the building. Officers climbed up the front and entered by the parlor window. Eleven men were within, and they made a wild dash to escape. Two succeeded, but the others were held up at the back fence and submitted without a struggle.

On the wall was found a telephone which had the appearance of having been in use for some months. A telephone instrument in the corner was merely a blind, while the walls were covered with racing charts.

All the prisoners were stylishly dressed, and the majority of them were elderly, gray haired men who looked like prosperous brokers. They claimed the police and declared they would be set free in short order, but were locked up for the night.

Many complaints have been made by persons swindled through the wire tapping game, one man having lost $50,000 a few months ago.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup seems especially adapted to the needs of the children. Pleasant to take; soothing in its influence. It is the remedy of all remedies for every form of throat and lung disease.

Ten thousand demons gnawing away at one's vitals couldn't be much worse than the tortures of itching piles. Yet there's a cure. Doan's Ointment never fails.

Croup instantly relieved. Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. Perfectly safe. Never fails. At any drug store.

CHARMING LAKE CHAMPLAIN TRIP.

Low Rate Excursion From Barre to Fort St. Frederic.

No more charming excursion has been run out of Barre this season than the one announced to take place on August 23d from Barre, Montpelier, Middlesex, Waterbury, Richmond and intermediate stations, to Fort St. Frederic, by way of the Central Vermont Railway to Burlington, and from there to the fort by the new magnificent steamer Vermont in a three hours' sail to the historic fort.

The Champlain Transportation Company has erected a wharf, dancing pavilion and other necessary buildings as an excursion and picnic resort, near the ruins of the old fortification at Crown Point.

The fare for the round trip will be as follows: Barre, Montpelier and Middlesex, 1.25; Waterbury to Jonesville, $1.00. Special trains will be run as follows: Leave Barre at 7:10 a. m., Montpelier at 7:30, Middlesex at 7:45, Waterbury at 7:55, arriving at Burlington at 9 a. m., and leaving immediately on the steamer for Fort St. Frederic, arriving there at 11:50. On the return trip the boat will leave the fort at 2 p. m., arriving in Burlington at 4:45 and reaching Barre by train at 6:45. Fill up your lunch baskets and take a day off.

Wooling a Widow in Buffalo.

John Tomczak, twenty-eight years old, died at Buffalo the other day. Mrs. Tomczak was buxom, red-cheeked, and twenty-six years old. Frank Czymki, a neighbor, is twenty-eight years old. Just before the funeral Frank called on Mrs. Tomczak. "I hear you're a widow now," said Czymki. "Yes, I'm a widow," she sighed. "A nice-looking woman like you should not be long without a husband," Czymki observed. "Let us get married." "All right," she said in a flash, and the widow became a bride. She did not have time to don widow's weeds. Czymki was one of the chief mourners at the funeral and a hearty participant in the jollities of the wedding. The Buffalo papers played the affair up as a novel sensation, and telegraphed highly colored versions of it to all the big papers of the country. Still, the case is not without precedent by any means. If Czymki had killed the other fellow, whose name looks like the product of a drunken typewriter, and then won the widow as she was returning from the funeral, he might have tied the score of King Richard III. in the wooing and winning of Anne. The Buffalo story as it stands is comparatively mild, but Buffalo has got over starting her murders, having taken the record in that line a few years ago.—Exchange.

The Wrong Ear.

On the car on which I ride down to work every morning there also rides a pretty girl. She is evidently well known to the conductor, for each time, after he collects her fare and punches a hole in the ticket to show the number of fares he has collected for the trip, he deftly puts the punch up to her ear and snaps it, just as though he were punching a hole in her ear. I had been watching him closely for the last week and inwardly betting that he would make a mistake some day and really punch a hole in the girl's ear. And it came this morning. That is, he got in trouble on the punching business, but not by punching a hole in her ear.

On the corner where the girl usually gets on another girl got on also yesterday and happened to take the seat usually occupied by girl No. 1. They were about the same size. The conductor went forward to collect the fares, and stopping behind the stranger he snapped the punch at the lobe of her ear. Startled, she turned around. "Sir! What do you mean?" Well, that conductor was too astounded to know what he did mean, but it could easily be seen that he wished himself a thousand miles away. I left the car at this point and wondered how he made good.—Albany Journal.

Taken All in All, It Is the Best School Board in New Hampshire.

The qualifications for membership on the school board in a certain New England town were carefully explained to a visitor who was interested in education, and who had remarked to her host on the way home from the closing exhibition at one of the schools that she would like to know why four men of such apparent dullness had been chosen for the board.

"Well, now, you take Abe Ransom," said her host, lightly flicking the whip on the back of his stolid old horse, "he's a good choice, just rate. He never made much of a boast of book learning, but he keeps a good assortment of paper and pencils and ink and all such in his store, and sells 'em reasonable, and it sort o' makes him a patron of education, as you might say. Then there's John Willett, he's a free-handed man as ever was, and he hauls a mess o' wood for 'em fall and winter, and never charges a cent for teaming, and puts the price on the wood low, too. I guess there isn't anybody much better suited for the school board than John. He's elected unanimous every time."

"And there's Jim Rawson. What d' you say? Um. Well, p'raps he isn't as bright as some, but I tell you, he keeps that school house in first-rate repair, and fixes up the grounds, too. I guess 't isn't every school board has got a man on it that'll shingle the roof half-price, put in window glass when needed, tinker up the desks and so on spring and fall, and fetch down a lawn mower to run over the grass once a month during vacation."

"Now I suppose you're going to light on me about Billy Lane, the young fellow, but I tell you, we couldn't keep a schoolm'ar in district four in the dead o' winter if 'twasn't for Billy. He's a good judge o' schoolm'ars, and he rides 'em out sleighing and keeps 'em chirking up through the hard weather, and come mid-time he puts on his high boots twice a week evenings and calls on 'em. I guess if you're talking about valuable men you'll have to put Billy pretty high up."

"Take it by and large, I don't believe you'll strike a better board than ours in the whole state of New Hampshire."—Youth's Companion.

Strenuous Life.

"Say," roared the irate citizen as he rushed into the office of the village weekly, "where's the editor?"

"Want to see him personally?" queried the office boy.

"You bet I do," answered the i. c.

"I'm going to thrash him within an inch of his life. See?"

"Oh, all right," answered the boy.

"Just have a seat, please. There are three others ahead of you."—Chicago News.

First Great Depression.

"What, may I ask, was the keenest disappointment of your career?" asked the anxious interviewer.

The great financier stared coldly at the ink bottle. "It was when I was 4 years old, I think," he drawled. "When I woke up one morning and found my balloon shrunken to one-fourth the size of the day before."—Detroit Free Press.
